STOCKS and BONDS

STOCK MARKET
NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—The stock market made partial recovery in the first half of today's session from the sweeping reaction of the previous day, but the uncertain trend later suggested that involuntary liquidation was still a factor to be reckoned with. "Announcement of the failure of a prominent brokerage house actively identified with the expansion of the metal industry occasioned surprise. The firm's difficulties were primarily ascribed to the calling of loans on depreciated collateral. Other firms and individuals were reported to be experiencing considerable embarrassment in meeting the demands of their banks, but the general financial situation, in its relation to stock exchange loans, was declared to be eminently sound. Dealings fell away somewhat from yesterday's high record, but the number of individual shares traded in was almost as large, embracing a variety of investment issues, many of which were probably liquidated to establish year end
